

How can YOU get involved?

Learn about wrongful convictions

Read books, watch movies, and listen to podcasts that tell stories of wrongful convictions. See a full list of suggested media at <https://www.innocencenetwork.org/wrongfulconvictionmedia/>. Share this media with others, through a book club or movie night, and raise awareness in your community about wrongful convictions by facilitating discussions on these stories.

Advocate for legislative reforms nationwide

Sign up to be notified of actions to help win legislative reforms at <https://www.innocenceproject.org/pledge/>. The Innocence Project will reach out to you for help when there's a campaign in your state.

Share innocence organizations' content on social media

Share their posts and tweets and encourage others to support their policy campaigns and attend their events. You can also start a fundraiser for an innocence organization on your own Facebook page. Click “Fundraisers” in the left menu of your News Feed, click “Raise Money,” click “Nonprofit,” select the organization, choose a cover photo, fill in fundraiser details, and click “Create.”

Fundraise for innocence organizations

Visit <https://innocencenetwork.org/members/> to find the organization nearest you. Most rely on donated funds to do their work. Ways you can fundraise on their behalf include working with a restaurant or bar to donate a portion of their proceeds when customers mention the cause, signing up for a walkathon or run and gathering pledges to donate through a crowdfunding platform, or hosting a house party to collect donations and screen wrongful conviction media.

Participate in Wrongful Conviction Day

Wrongful Conviction Day, October 2nd, is an international day to raise awareness of the causes and remedies of wrongful conviction and to recognize the tremendous personal, social, and emotional costs of wrongful conviction for innocent people and their families. Visit <http://www.iwcd.org> to learn how you can get involved.
